Distributed migration delivery

Harborview supports regional offices, mixed connectivity, very large file collections, and the shared folders a business genuinely cannot lose.

REPEATABLE CHECKS

Ownership, permissions, naming, duplicates, and failed transfers are reviewed for every single wave — never sampled.

WORKING ACROSS TIME ZONES

Cutovers run overnight against North American business hours, monitored by an on-call engineer, with a written status report waiting each morning.

Digital operational resilience

Operational Resilience Partners helps financial and regulated organisations build an operating model that teams can evidence, test, and improve.

Govern

Map critical services, information assets, dependencies, owners, and third-party technology providers. Build a register that gives risk and technology leaders one shared view.

Test

Design practical scenarios for incident response, continuity, recovery, and resilience testing. Connect findings to accountable actions and measurable remediation.

Evidence

Organise policies, decisions, reports, and test results so audit conversations are based on a living record rather than scattered documents.

Address Havnegade 39, 1058 Copenhagen

Regulatory Control Lab works with regulated organisations that need to make operational resilience visible across technology, risk, procurement, and executive governance.

ICT risk management

Translate policy into ownership, controls, review cycles, and working evidence. Teams gain a practical view of important services and the technology that supports them.

Third-party oversight

Structure supplier information, criticality decisions, contracts, dependencies, and review actions so external technology risk can be managed continuously.

Incident readiness

Connect response procedures, communication plans, recovery priorities, and lessons learned. Every exercise produces actions that can be tracked to completion.

Management reporting

Present concise evidence to leadership and auditors, with a clear line from important business services to risks, controls, tests, findings, and remediation.

Move once. Move well.

Nova Terra takes mail and calendar estates that have accumulated for fifteen years and moves them exactly once. No pilot that quietly becomes production. No second attempt six months later.

We would rather spend three weeks reading your calendar data than three months apologising for it.

Every mailbox, room resource, delegate rule, and recurring series is accounted for before a single item is written to the destination.

DISCOVERY → ROADMAP → DELIVERY → HANDOVER

Discovery workshops

Content owners, department leads and administrators map every site, drive, library and share in one room.

The roadmap

One plan per business unit, with priorities, review points and named owners for every decision.

Pilots first

Repeatable validation checks make delivery legible before the main move begins.

After handover

Governance guidance keeps the destination organised once the consultants have gone.

Vom Assessment bis zum Betrieb

1. Assessment with context

Workshops with records owners and service desk staff, connected to the technical inventory — so the plan reflects how information is actually used.

2. Test migration

Detailed exception reports, cutover planning, and a documented ownership model for the destination.

3. Adoption

Department-level guidance so the new structure survives contact with everyday work.

4. Operations after go-live

Managed support, scheduled reporting reviews, and small improvement cycles.

Sprachen: Deutsch und Englisch, in Workshops wie in der Dokumentation.

Pour les archives vivantes

Museums, broadcasters and design studios do not have “files”. They have masters, proxies, working versions, and a rights history attached to each one.

Atelier treats a media library as a catalogue rather than a folder tree: provenance, versions and access are preserved as first-class facts, not as a side effect of copying bytes.

Every wave, the same checklist

BrightPath turns a complex inventory into manageable waves, then runs each one to an identical script. Sponsors always know which step is in progress.

- ✓ Inventory agreed with the content owner
- ✓ Dry run, with results published to the dashboard
- ✓ Remediation decisions recorded, not assumed
- ✓ Cutover window confirmed with the service desk
- ✓ Acceptance signed before the legacy share goes read-only

Retiring the old estate. After acceptance: read-only period, archive snapshot, then decommissioning. Nothing disappears without a record of who agreed to it.

Compliance-led migration

Auditability, least-privilege access and retention requirements are designed into every wave — not reconstructed afterwards for the governance review.

Assessment	Business units, data owners, security groups, governing policy
Per wave	Discovery, remediation, test migration, validation, formal acceptance
Evidence	Exception reports, risk reporting, acceptance records
Afterwards	Permission review, safe retirement of legacy locations

ENGLISH

Public-sector and regulated customers in Canada carry language obligations that survive the migration. Workshops, documentation and end-user guidance are delivered in both official languages, by the same team that runs the move.

FRANÇAIS

Les ateliers, la documentation et les guides destinés aux utilisateurs sont livrés dans les deux langues officielles, par l'équipe qui réalise la migration.

Mail and calendar, nothing else

Mailboxes, shared calendars, room resources and delegate permissions — migrated as one connected estate rather than three separate projects.

Regional data residency

Content stays within Australian regions for the whole move, and the residency evidence is captured in the run history — so an audit is answered from the record, not from memory.

Sydney hours

Cutovers are scheduled against local business hours, with the service desk briefed before users notice anything has changed.
